How helpful would it be to a student and his or her parents, or to someone planning to re-enter the workforce or change careers, to know the “hot jobs” in Florida, potential earnings, and where to get the education and training? For example, knowing that a person skilled in Network Support Services with a degree from Miami-Dade College is projected to earn $77,000 the first year, with a 20-year additional earnings potential over HS-only education, of $1,029,891, even taking into consideration the cost of the degree, which may be a subbaccalaureate degree. How helpful would it be to know the 10 Florida hot jobs categories when deciding what to do after high school? Or to know the estimated first year statewide average salary of an accountant/auditor is $42,533, is less than that in Tallahassee, but greater in Tampa?

A new digital tool to provide such career path guidance was launched at the Florida Chamber Foundation’s Future of Florida Forum in late September. LaunchMyCareerFL.org is a free resource that helps students, parents, and others seeking career direction to navigate the employment and related education options available from public post-secondary institutions in Florida. A joint effort of the Florida Chamber Foundation, the US Chamber of Commerce Foundation, the American Institutes for Research and the Florida Department of Economic Opportunity, the tool provides a treasure chest of information on jobs, cost of related education at various Florida post-secondary institutions, return on investment, projected beginning salaries and projected future earnings, and skills that can be added to a career choice that would serve to enhance earnings and increase the potential for career advancement. Many of Florida’s hot jobs do not require a four-year degree, and the LaunchMyCareerFL tool includes extensive information on education opportunities for subbaccalaureate degrees as well as information on jobs that demand a four-year degree or better. In addition, the tool reports job and lifestyle satisfaction for different career paths.

Data on the education costs and earnings potential is obtained from records maintained by the state of Florida. Other states with a LaunchMyCareer resource are Colorado, Tennessee and Texas. Florida’s version can be accessed at https://LaunchMyCareerFL.org. We highly recommend that all job seekers and their advisors get to know this resource and use it to their full advantage.

We are grateful for the role of the Florida Chamber Foundation and DEO in making LaunchMyCareerFL available free of charge to all Floridians. The Able Trust is pleased to have this tool as a resource for all Floridians, including job seekers with disabilities.

Kind regards,

Dr. Susanne F. Homant, MBA
President & CEO
October is Disability Employment Awareness Month (DEAM) in the state of Florida. But thanks to efforts spurred on by The Able Trust, DEAM is no longer a day, week, or even month-long activity.

Meaningful employment opportunities for Floridians with disabilities stem from internships, job-shadowing, and other job-readiness measures that cannot be accomplished in a day. It takes a committed, year-long effort to hone job seekers for the positions they seek to fill. Further, education and dispelling of myths held by many employers is a critical part of opening doors to successful employment for what to this point has been a virtually untapped resource. On September 22, The Able Trust kicked off the DEAM season with an awareness event in Orlando, which was immediately followed by the annual Ability Awards ceremony, where several individuals and organizations from across the state were recognized for their accomplishments in creating employment opportunities.

Senator Jack Latvala has been a staunch supporter of The Able Trust and its mission, going to bat for the organization during the past legislative session. He was recognized as Senator of the Year for his efforts.

“It has been my pleasure to work with The Able Trust for many years,” Latvala said. “There are a lot of needs in Florida. As a legislator, some things we do a good job of; others we need to do more work. Successful employment for Floridians with disabilities is an area that we can do more work in.”

Manufacturing is a growing job sector in the state, and Executive Director of the Central Florida Manufacturers Association (MACF), Sherry Reeves, sees the need for hiring Floridians with disabilities to help her industry continue to thrive.

“Many often ask why hire an individual with a disability?” Reeves remarked. “These employees have high retention rates and are loyal to their employers. The Able Trust and MACF work closely with local schools to invite students with disabilities to participate in tours, engaging them in the pursuit of careers. We put them to work, and give them support.”

Of course, in looking toward the workforce of tomorrow, The Able Trust is investing today in the lives of students with disabilities. R.J. Curtis is one of several hundred students across the state that participate in The Able Trust High School High Tech (HSHT) program. Not only is R.J. a student with a disability, but he was also in the foster-care system where, due to his age and disability, had less than a 5% chance of being adopted before aging out and being on his own. Had this occurred, R.J. would have only been a sophomore in high school, without any guidance or support. Fortunately for him, that was not the case.

“My story could have been very different today,” Curtis said. “I had spent 5,475 days in foster care before meeting my mom. I was small and very shy, and had never completed an entire school year at one school, which led to my disabilities not being addressed. Today, I am an incoming senior at Pepin Academy with a 3.4 GPA and making plans to attend college. I worked at a UPS store this summer and gained valuable work experience. I’ve had a chance to play on a baseball team and get my driver’s license; common things for kids my age, but not for kids in foster care. I thank The Able Trust for providing a program like High School High Tech that gives me confidence and employment skills.”

Universal Orlando Vice President of Human Resources, Scot LaFerté, shared the importance of diversity and inclusion from an employer’s perspective. He echoed the importance of DEAM as a continuing effort to broaden awareness and change organizational cultures, making them more welcoming.

“Diversity allows us to strengthen bonds; not just in terms of teamwork, but provides our guests with a much better experience,” he said. “It is our culture. It’s who we are and what we believe. When we invite our guests to come and visit us, we mean ALL guests; not just the ones that look like me.”

Diversity has led to innovation, giving way to new ideas and ways of thinking that would not have been possible otherwise. Universal Orlando has seven diverse Team Member Resource Groups that help ensure that all voices have a chance to be heard. One of those groups is the MyAbilities Network, whose purpose is to value the unique perspective of people with varying abilities in the workplace. The MyAbilities network helps promote awareness, embrace inclusion, and provide education to help break the barriers that sometimes exist for people with varying abilities.

“At Universal, we work to recognize and celebrate the way Team Members stand out for being who they are,” LaFerté added. “We do that by tapping into their unique talents and abilities, cultivating their skills and honoring their differences. Being different and standing out is a part of who we are, it’s how we connect. Our Team Members who have a disability do not want to be defined by their disability, but rather want to be recognized for their unique abilities and contribution to the business. Think of your best moments at work. I bet they happen when you work on a diverse team where people come together, being their best selves in truly authentic ways... something The Able Trust knows a lot about.”

Florida Disability Employment Awareness Month
by Joseph D'Souza

October may be Disability Employment Awareness Month (DEAM), but in Florida it has long since expanded to become a “season” of career experiences for students and job seekers with disabilities. Despite this year’s active hurricane season, dedicated community liaisons and businesses have not stopped providing various career exploration activities to people with disabilities.

Bank of America is a new sponsor, and will join the following returners:

- Florida Hospital
- Florida Power & Light
- Dan Marino Foundation
- Florida Chamber of Commerce
- Universal Orlando Resort
- Darden Restaurants
- Publix Supermarkets
- Florida Division of Vocational Rehabilitation
- Agency for Persons with Disabilities
- Moore Communications Group
- Raymond James Mustard Seed Advisors
- Richard L. Cole, Jr. & Barbara Cole

If your organization interested in being a 2017 DEAM participant, there is still time to get involved, either as a community liaison, or as a business hosting participants. Visit www.abletrust.org or call 850-224-4493 for more information.
Bank of America realizes the power of people, and values their differences — in thought, style, sexual orientation, gender identity, culture, ethnicity and experience. Such an inclusive organizational culture has paid off in not only a successful business model, but a strong, loyal workforce.

Per Bank of America, “Diversity and inclusion are central to our company’s values, and we are proud to be widely recognized for our progressive workplace practices and initiatives that promote inclusion.”

According to the 2017 Disability Equality Index (DEI) — a measure created by the American Association for People with Disabilities (AAPD) and United States Business Leadership Network (BLN) — Bank of America is one of only a few distinguished organizations that boasts an EDI 100%. The EDI is a national, transparent, annual benchmarking tool that offers businesses an opportunity to receive an objective score, on a scale of zero (0) to 100, on their disability inclusion policies and practices. It is an aspirational, educational, recognition tool that is intended to help companies identify opportunities for continued improvement, and help build a company’s reputation as an employer of choice.

“Bank of America is committed to attracting, recruiting and retaining top diverse talent from across the globe, and delivering on the promise of being a great place for people to work by creating an environment where all employees feel they have the opportunity to achieve their goals.” Bank of America reports.

The Able Trust proudly salutes Bank of America as a leader in supporting diversity in the workplace, and promoting the mission of providing Floridians with disabilities opportunities for successful employment. Bank of America is also one of the newest sponsors of Florida Disability Employment Awareness Month.

Senator of the Year

Senator Aaron Bean

Jacksonville, Florida

Senator Bean’s public service officially began when he served as Commissioner and Mayor of the city of Fernandina Beach from 1996-1999. He was originally elected to the state legislature as a Representative from the Jacksonville area in 2000, serving until 2008. He then returned as a Senator, elected in 2012 and re-elected to his current term. He represents Senate District 4, Nassau County and parts of Duval County, and outside of his legislative duties, works for UF Health in Jacksonville. Senator Bean was an early supporter of the work of The Able Trust, especially its youth programs, striving always to provide policy and public support assistance to allow Floridians with disabilities to lead lives of their choosing, to the very highest level of their abilities. Senator Bean has addressed the issues that affect all citizens with disabilities, never failing to praise the work of The Able Trust as it creates and supports programs to make sure that Floridians with disabilities are a part of the Florida workforce and contributors to Florida’s economic growth. In 2017, Senator Bean sponsored a bill to extend the work of the Able Trust, and was adamant in his support of the continuation of the work of the organization, in spite of challenges. He was the recipient of Senator of the Year Awards from the Able Trust in 2013 and 2014, and this will be the Senator’s third, well-deserved recognition by this organization.

Senator of the Year

Senator Jack Latvala

Clearwater, Florida

Senator Latvala represents Senate District 16, which includes parts of Pasco and Pinellas Counties. In his private life he is a successful businessman, and is president of his own printing company. He has a long and stellar history of service to the state of Florida: as a Senator from 1994 – 2002, then returning to public service again in 2010 as Senator, and most recently being re-elected to his current term of office. During his years as a legislator, he has continuously supported the work of The Able Trust, and has been a champion for people with all types of disabilities – mental, physical, young and old, and has received many awards for that advocacy and unselfish support. During the 2017 session, he was steadfast in his support of The Able Trust in his role as Chair of the Appropriations Committee, and the continuation of its work for people with disabilities throughout the state of Florida, in spite of several challenges along the way. In 2012, The Able Trust honored Senator Latvala as Legislator of the Year, and is humbled and honored to present that award again in 2017.

Representative of the Year

Representative Sam Killebrew

Winter Haven, Florida

Representative Killebrew arrived in Tallahassee as a newlyelected legislator in 2016, coming out of retirement to work on public and policy issues that affect the families and businesses in Florida. A Navy veteran, Mr. Killebrew has an extensive business background as owner of Killebrew Inc., an underground utility construction company in Florida, and as partner in Florida Strategic Group, LLC. His business background also includes work in manufacturing businesses. Although retired from those business pursuits, he has a number of King Charles spaniel rescue dogs that help to manage his time! His desire to serve the public is apparent in his support of several civic organizations in Florida in House District 41, which includes parts of Polk County. During his inaugural session with the state legislature this year, he sponsored an important bill for The Able Trust, a bill that eventually passed and assured the continuation of Able Trust programs. The road to passage was bumpy, but Representative Killebrew never gave up and was a persistent supporter of the rights of Floridians with disabilities to have a place in the workforce. The Able Trust is honored to thank him for his efforts on behalf of Floridians with disabilities.

The Able Trust commends Orange County Public Schools for creating and sustaining a highly successful program.
Allison Shirk has written several stories and columns that have heightened community awareness concerning individuals with disabilities. Her articles have chronicled their pursuit of employment, and ways the Daytona community has become actively involved in empowering individuals with disabilities as they live, learn, work, and achieve independence. Stories ranging from a local Project SEARCH program partnering with the community hospital to train and hire students with disabilities, to sharing the joy of a 7-year-old foster child finding his forever home with a family that loves him and understands his special needs are just a few examples. She has also written education stories involving local police training, outlining how to interact with individuals with Autism, and about how a local middle school is using a reading program to improve fluency with students who have learning differences. These stories have not only helped shine a light on solving everyday challenges of living and growing up with a disability, but have also given local citizens the opportunity to better understand their fellow community members.

Sarah Goldman continues to make an amazing life for herself and those lucky enough to be around her! Currently serving Representative Peters as her District Secretary, Sarah is actively pursuing her career goal of addressing public policy issues as they relate to providing equal opportunities for people with disabilities. She is a longtime friend of the Able Trust, beginning with her attendance at the Able Trust’s Youth Leadership Forum as a young teenager. Since then, she has served as a willing volunteer to the Forum, performing as a mentor to participants and an inspiration to their hopes for a productive life. She is a founding member of The Able Trust Alumni Association, is a frequent speaker on disability issues, and has worked with the Able Trust Board on many matters related to legislation, including delivering critical messages to legislators during the past legislative session. Sarah has also made herself easily available to other young Floridians with disabilities, advising and directing them as requested. Her personal accomplishments include earning her BA at UCF, and her MSW at Florida State University. Born with cerebral palsy, she has risen to heights she has set for herself, and we expect much more from this rising star, who has earned the title of Young Adult Leader for 2017.
Universal Orlando Resorts works consistently to make sure the company represents its guests and the entire population that it serves. The Resort has received recognition from parent company Comcast NBCUniversal for its focus on Varying Abilities, for its ADA and Safety team, and Diversity and Inclusion programming. Tom Williams, Chairman and CEO of Universal Parks and Resorts, stated, “We are completely committed to diversity and inclusiveness. It makes sense to have our leadership teams represent the diversity of the guests we serve. Diversity is critical to our success.”

In the spirit of that philosophy and under the extremely capable leadership of Senior VP of Human Resources Scot LaFerté, Universal Parks and Resorts in Orlando has fostered the development and growth of Team Member Resource Groups, which include groups such as the African American Network, the Asian Pacific American Network, Studio Out for LGBT members, iUnidos for Hispanic-Americans, Veterans Network, Woman’s network, and MyAbility, the group that assists with team members who have a disability. The company focus of the MyAbility group is “to be recognized as a workplace that embraces the disability community by valuing differences.” The goals of the group include supporting independence and promoting workplace contributions made by people with varying abilities.

In addition to its internal focus on diversity and inclusion, Universal Orlando Resort partners with other organizations, including lending executives for membership on the Boards of The Able Trust, Quest, Special Olympics, and other charitable organizations. One of the company’s special events for the past several years is its “A Day in Our Universe”, which involves organizations from within the disability community, and helps to keep Universal leadership up to date on work spaces, job tasks, and to identify opportunities within the organization for its workforce and guests.

Well known among the disability network for its diverse and inclusive philosophy, Universal has the fortune to have a great supporter of those goals among its key executives. Under the visionary leadership of Scot LaFerté, Senior Vice President of Human Resources, teams across the various disciplines of the human resources department work to understand the best way to collaborate, innovate and deliver results. Scot continues to serve as an exemplary leader, embodying Universal’s culture of inclusion. He lives the Universal Way, which highlights the best way we can each stand out to deliver unforgettable moments to all – guests, team members, suppliers and the community. He knows that people are at the heart of all that Universal does, and he continues to find ways that all people can contribute to the company’s mission and vision. Under his leadership, inclusion is Universal.

The Able Trust is honored to recognize Universal Orlando Resorts and Scot LaFerté as the 2017 Business of the Year.

The Able Trust High School High Tech: A Proven Path to Education & Employment

by Allison Chase

The Able Trust High School High Tech (HSHT) is a year-round program for youth with disabilities ages 14-22. HSHT prepares students for life after high school – post-secondary education, employment, community involvement – through real-world experiences. Activities include career workshops, industry & campus tours, summer internships, community service projects, leadership development, and much more. Core features of the HSHT program – job shadowing, industry site visits, mentoring, and internships – are designed to provide hands-on experience that excites and attracts students to promising careers. HSHT partners with business and industry through local Business Advisory Councils (BAC) to ensure that program standards align with business needs. HSHT fosters business champions that understand the importance of diversity in the workplace, and the benefits of including students with disabilities in STEM education.

The Able Trust High School High Tech is an amazing program that allowed my son to learn about the world of work. He gained employability skills and had the opportunity to interact with other students with disabilities. The most valuable aspect of the program were the summer internships. Each experience allowed Josh to understand the day to day aspects of working and what it takes to be a successful employee. We are so grateful he had the opportunity to be a part of the HSHT program. I would highly recommend this program to any student with a disability.

–Karen W., Parent of Alachua HSHT student

Alumni Corner: Anthony LaCava

by Rachael Moulton

Anthony La Cava is a member of the Able Trust Alumni Association, and serves as Chairman for the Planning Committee. He is one of the first students to participate in the early years of YLF, and has returned each summer for more than a decade as a staff member.

Anthony is an IT professional in Atlanta, Georgia, who recently completed negotiations with a new employer. After applying via social media site LinkedIn, Anthony completed a phone interview and two in-person interviews. He expects to begin his new job in October.

“When I was sitting in the car with my mom, hugging her and saying goodbye, in my mind I was asking myself, ‘What are you doing? I must be crazy? Am I really doing this right now? But once I settled in, all my fears vanished.’” Catherine shared during the closing ceremonies.

Over the course of the forum, students took campus tours of Florida State University and Tallahassee Community College, in addition to learning about the steps necessary to apply and get accommodations should they be necessary.

“Before I came to this forum, I really didn’t know if I could go to college,” Manny said. “But now, I believe I can make it.”

YLF participants visited several local industries as part of a STEM (science, technology, engineering, and math) career exploration exercise. Students had the choice of learning about healthcare careers at the Ghazvini Center, science careers at the Florida State University National Magnetic Laboratory, or technology careers at the STEM Center and Advanced Manufacturing Training Center (AMTC) at Tallahassee Community College. Students also participated in a mock legislative session in the House Chambers of the Florida Capitol where they debated and voted on a bill regarding homework in public schools. Dinner and business etiquette training, disability history, sensitivity, and resource seminars rounded out the week’s events.

YLF 2017: Empowering Future Leaders

by Ray Ford, Jr.

On July 19, nearly 40 students from across the state of Florida participated in five days of leadership training at the 2017 Able Trust Youth Leadership Forum (YLF). Thanks to major funding from The Able Trust, along with generous support from corporate and private sponsors, high school students were able to experience leadership training with a career path emphasis at no cost to their families.

Alumni Corner: Anthony LaCava

by Rachael Moulton

Anthony La Cava is a member of the Able Trust Alumni Association, and serves as Chairman for the Planning Committee. He is one of the first students to participate in the early years of YLF, and has returned each summer for more than a decade as a staff member.

Anthony is an IT professional in Atlanta, Georgia, who recently completed negotiations with a new employer. After applying via social media site LinkedIn, Anthony completed a phone interview and two in-person interviews. He expects to begin his new job in October.

“I’ve been lucky that I haven’t had too many obstacles in finding a job,” Anthony said. “But once I get a job, I’ve had to advocate for what I need. Don’t be afraid to ask for help or accommodations.”

Anthony encourages others who are looking for a job to remember that when considering a job, not only is the company interviewing you, you are also interviewing them.

“Make sure you think the company is a good fit for you, and don’t focus on the money. Finding a company that you will be happy with is a lot better than making a few more dollars in the long run.”

15 The Able Trust
Memorial Gifts

There are many ways for you to make a gift in remembrance of someone special that will have meaningful significance for years to come. Here are a few options to consider:

Make a Deductible Gift and Receive Life Income

You may wish to make a memorial gift while providing current life income for yourself. If your memorial gift is made to fund a charitable remainder trust, you can receive income monthly, quarterly or annually. You receive a charitable deduction for your gift this year and avoid paying capital gains tax on the sale of your appreciated assets. The remainder passes to us as a gift in memory of your loved one. Please contact us for more information on charitable trust plans.

A Memorial Gift of Cash or Property

A gift of cash is one of the simplest ways to remember your loved one or friend. You receive a tax deduction for the value of your gift to The Able Trust. Please designate the person you wish to remember and the best way that we can honor them. If you are making a memorial gift of non-cash property, your deduction may depend on the type of property proposed for gifting. Please call us to discuss the treatment of your gift and the best way to transfer your property to us.

Contributions are deductible according to applicable IRS guidelines. The Able Trust is a nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization and in compliance with the Florida Solicitation of Contributions Act.
